

PA Code Update Training

Find out what you need to know

September 4th Noon till 4:00

On September 4, 2018 the Builders Association will have the (PHRC) Pennsylvania Housing Research Center hold a code training at the Zem Zem Shrine Club on the new changes to the building codes. This is the first update in nearly a decade.

The changes will apply to things such as fire safety, insulation and building materials in new construction and major renovations. They are expected to make new homes about 25% more energy efficient than homes built to the 2009 standards.

On October 1, 2018 these changes will take effect.

Members of the BA are free but you must register with the BA office prior to the training. Cost at the door for members will be $20.00 per person without registering. Nonmembers of the Builders Association are $15.00 to register or $25.00 at the door.

Registration forms are available on line @
banwpa.com

Watch the website for more information on this training.
light refreshments will be provided
